SUMMARY REPORT

ADC-2302 :ORAL HEALTH SCREENING AND CANCER DETECTION

Oral cancer is a major public health problem, and there is an increasing trend for oral cancer to affect young men and women. Public awareness is poor, and many patients present with late-stage disease, contributing to high mortality. Oral cancer is often preceded by a clinical premalignant phase accessible to visual inspection. Thus, there is opportunity for early detection, to reduce morbidity and mortality. A positive screening includes both oral cancer and oral potentially malignant lesions. Resource person: Dr.Neelima ,Professor, MRDCW, Hyderabad.The course is designed to teach the students oral pre-malignant and malignant conditions, its diagnostic and treatment protocols. The course is conducted by the Department of Oral Surgery For II year BDS students.
